

ARCHER

1958

ANTWERP 1958

Dr. William H. Caine

For the dedication of the 1958 Archer Yearbook we have chosen a member of our community who has served in many ways to benefit Antwerp and its surrounding area. As a doctor he has devoted his life to his practice and to the welfare of the public in many ways. For years he has co-operated wholeheartedly with the school and its health program. In dedicating this Yearbook to Dr. William Caine, we believe that we are speaking for the many individuals who appreciate his effort to make Antwerp a better community in which to live.

I am speaking in behalf of the Board of Education, teachers and all concerned. Here in Antwerp we are trying to make the American dream a reality, "Educational opportunities for every child up to the limits of his talent and his capacity to use them."

The citizens of this community have, by their support, made the first part of this dream possible as exemplified by our new elementary building. The other part of this dream is up to the parents, teachers and you. Parents and teachers can encourage, guide and inspire while you master the necessary assignments as a preparation for your future problems.

Today, much precious talent is going to waste because only about one fourth of the top students go to college. We cannot afford to lose this much-needed manpower as the problems of the family, community, business, government and science have grown relentlessly more complex.

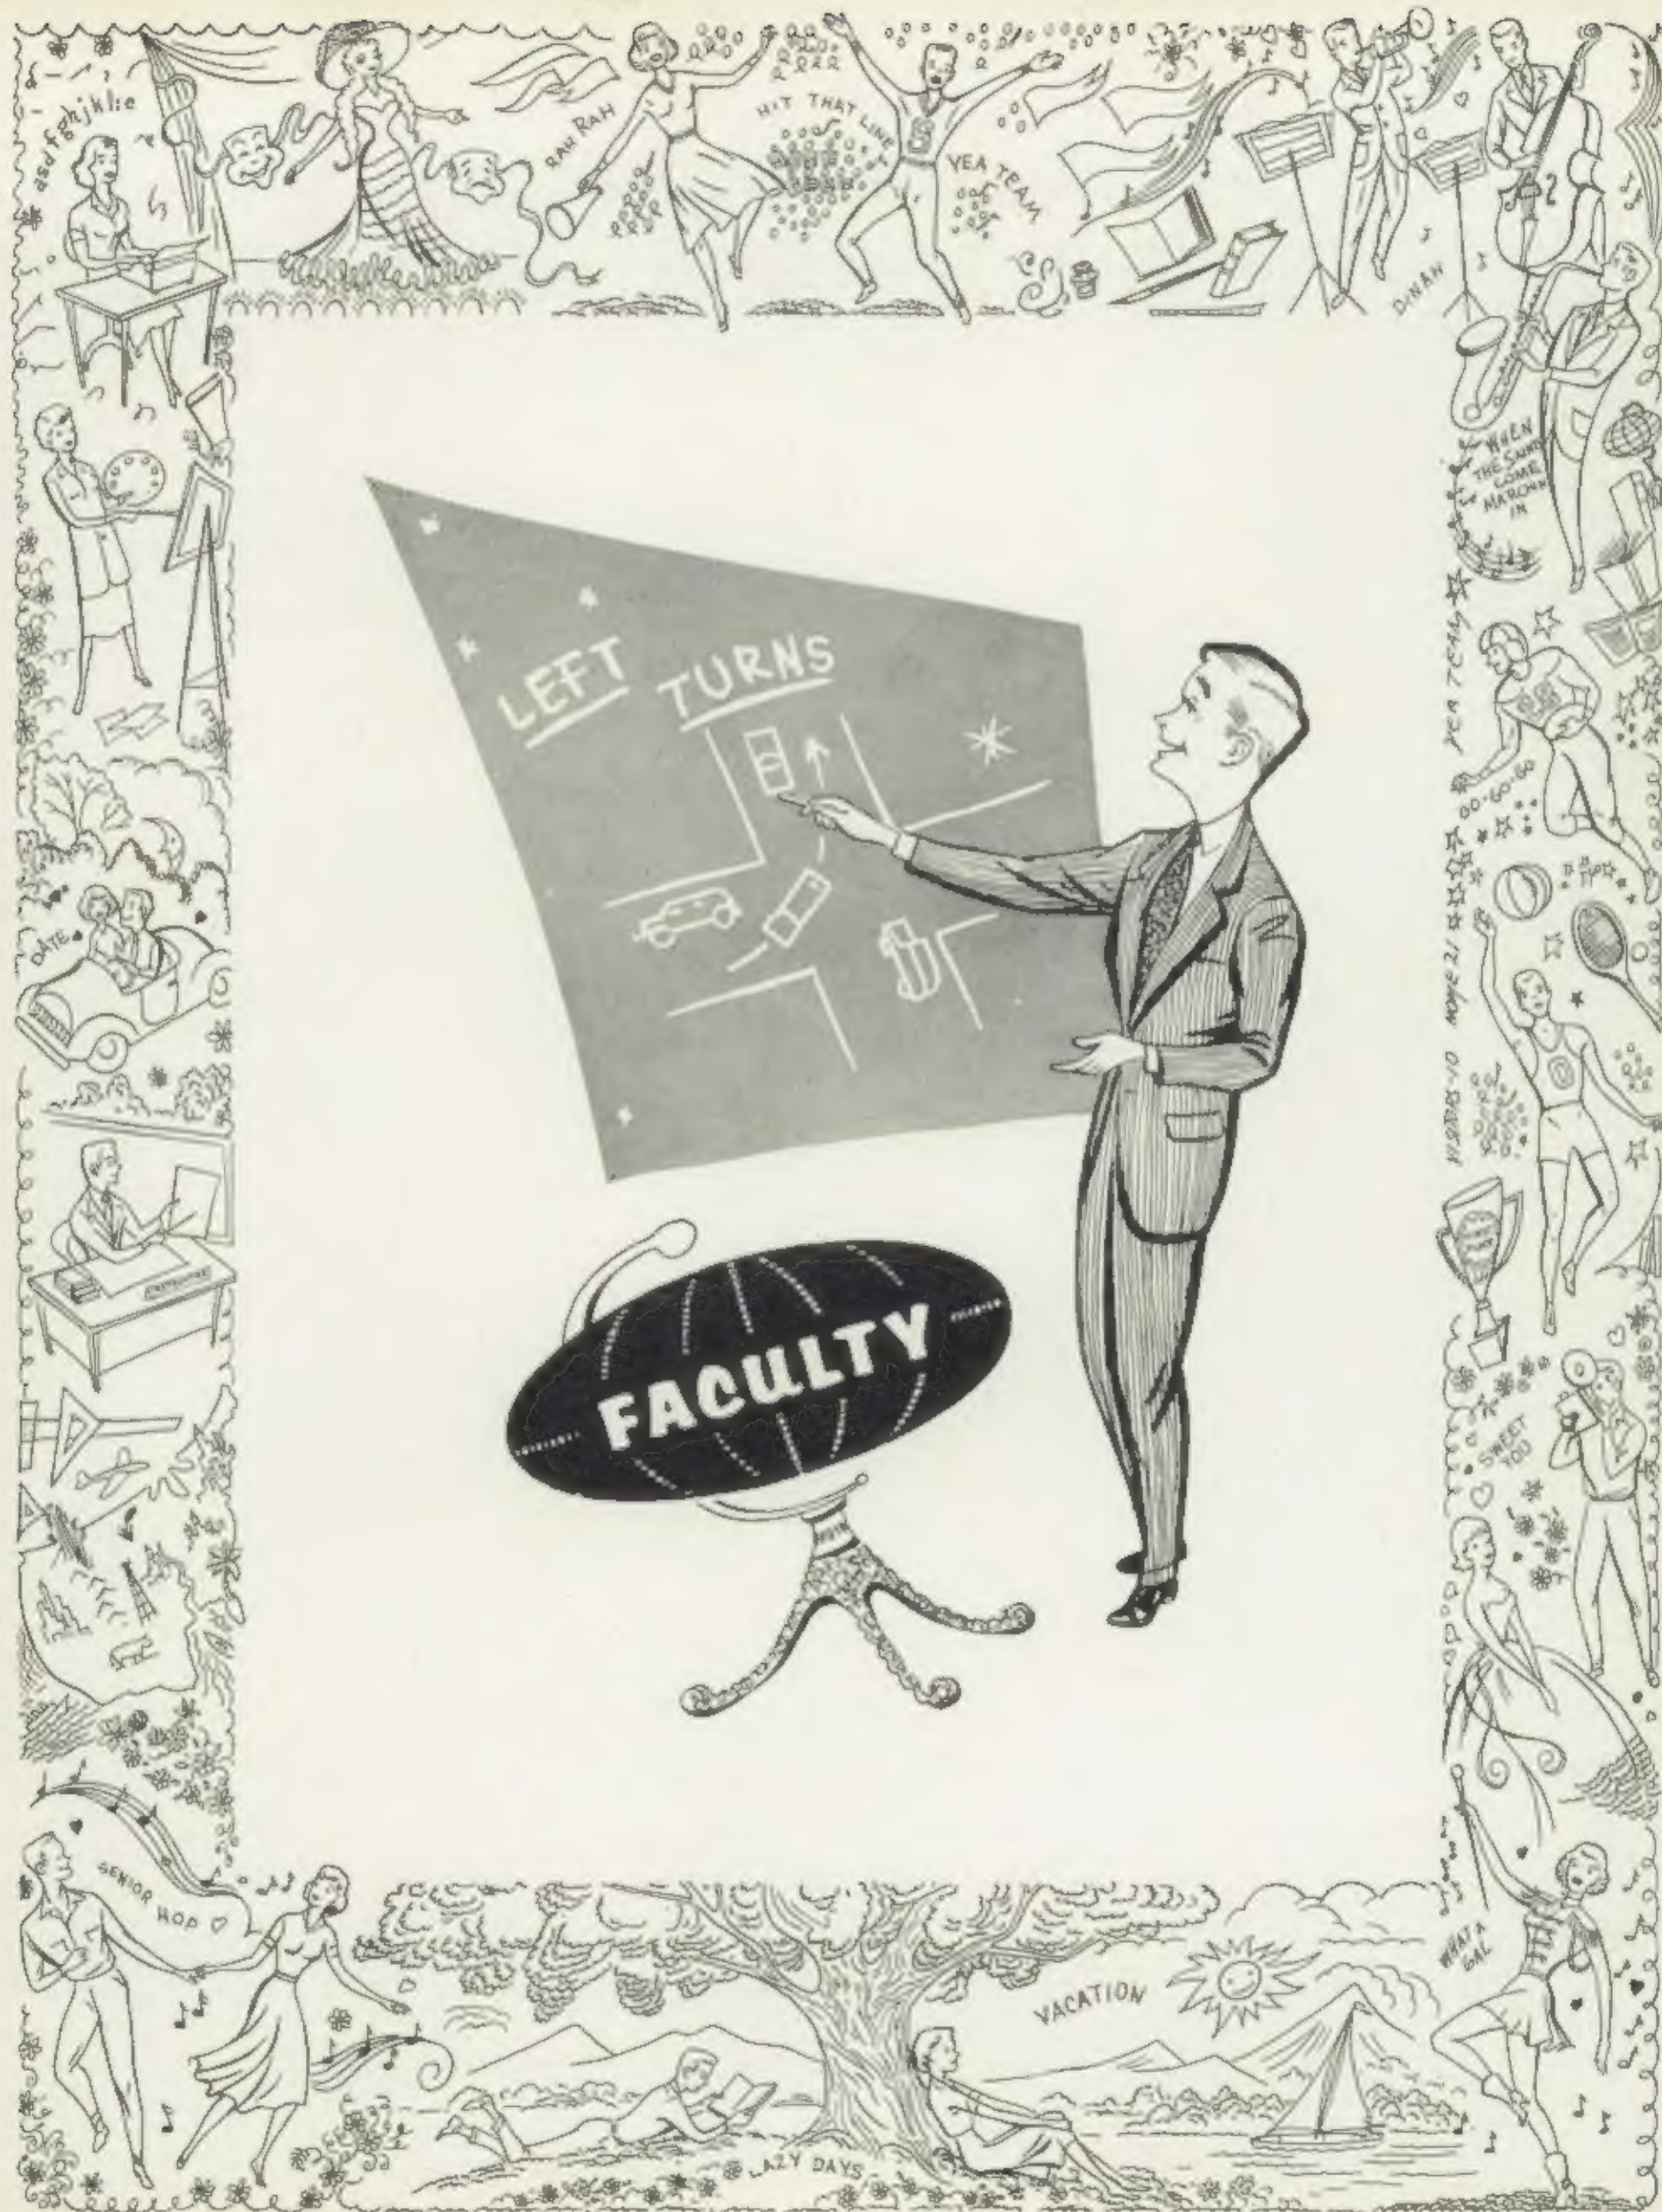

The progress of this country as a dynamic and free society has been because we have provided more educational opportunities for our people than any other country. Higher education has been one of the main bulwarks of our national life. We can remain strong only if we have educated manpower sufficient to meet the demands of a nation still growing, both in quality and in size.

Today we are in an uncomfortable position. We have shortages of educated manpower in education itself, in medicine, science, engineering, business, ministry, social welfare and other fields vital to this nation's well-being. Our colleges and universities are the main instruments for supplying this necessary educated manpower.

It is my hope that the seven hundred plus students of the Antwerp School, after completing their course here, if possible and advisable, continue on to a higher plane.

O. R. ZEDAKER.
